

Asuka High School is a credit-based high school.

What is a credit-based high school?

There is no division of curriculum according to grade level. There is no promotion or repetition of the grade level.

It is a school where each student makes a course plan.

To be qualified for graduation

- ① Complete all required courses (as specified in the curriculum guidelines)
- ② Acquire the required credits (74 credits or more)
- ③ The period of high school enrollment (including any previous schools) is 3 years or more
- ④ Satisfactory participation in school events

Features of our school

In the first year, students mainly study compulsory subjects in a class-by-class timetable.

From the second year, you can choose and study subjects according to your interests based on your study plan.

There is no grade division and you can study at your own pace (3rd year graduation, 4th year graduation).

Our school is on a credit system, but there are activities and events in the lessons.
