

Hello! Today, I would like to share my school life in the U.S. There are many differences between life in Japan and life in America, and I would be glad if you are interested in hearing about my experiences here.

Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving is a traditional American event that celebrates the idea of everything we have comes from God, acknowledging His sovereignty over our lives. In my family, we eat turkey, mashed potatoes, and other dishes. Additionally, I made some Japanese food, like okonomiyaki and onigiri.

Bowling

Winter sports have started at my high school, and I joined the bowling team. There was a tryout to join the team, but I passed! Usually, I play bowling about three times a week. It's very challenging but also very enjoyable.

Takoyaki

I had takoyaki this month when I visited a Japanese game center called Round One. It was very similar to the ones in Japan. This was my first time eating Japanese food since I arrived in the U.S., and I was really happy to enjoy the takoyaki.

Test Day

In my high school, we have test days just like in Japan. However, some subjects do not have tests, such as drawing and English. I was surprised to learn that there is no English test. Instead, we have a final assignment. I was initially worried about taking an English test, so I felt relieved that I didn't have to take one.
