

Hello, five months have passed since I came to Australia. It is a turning point of my study abroad. I have had a lot of experiences during this period, and now, I love Australia. I feel my English skills are growing, my pronouncing is bad and my friends don't get what I said though.

In this June, my host school had huge problem, which is the school system and Wi-Fi didn't work because of virus. Most of schools in Australia use laptops in hole lessons and my school too. We have not been able to use our laptops since the beginning of June. The information of students such as grades will disappear if the school system isn't fixed. I hope it's going well.

There is a teacher who teaches Japanese in my school, and he invited students to the BBQ of the Japanese club in Adelaide university. I talked with university students about our experiences and favorite anime. I would like to go to the club again.

I also went to a theater with my friend. It was the second time to go to watch movie in Australia. Last time, I watched difficult content's movie, so I didn't get the story. This time, I watched the Disney movie for kids, so I enjoyed it. I watched a Disney movie at my friend's house about 3 months ago, so I felt the growth of my English skills.

In June, students had a semester change. I lost a lot of opportunities to talk with my friends because I made friends in the last classes, and I was worried about becoming estranged from my friends. However, all my friends often come to see me, so I can spend lunch or recess time as usual. I would like to study history, so picked it for this semester, but there are lots of other people who want to pick history so I could not be in a history class. Some of my friends are in a history class, so I ask them about what they learned in a history class.

The Himeji Garden, which is near the city, was beautiful. This is a Japanese garden, so I saw some plants and sanely which I am familiar with. Himeji in Japan and Adelaide are sister cities, so this garden was created as a symbol of the relationship.

My time in Australia is enjoyable and meaningful, so I cannot believe that half of my study abroad experience is already over. I have a lot of things to do next month, and I also have a school holiday. See you next time.
