

Hello everyone!! How's it going, mate? Recently I am pretty good. (G'day!!)

The first greeting in this report is Aussie greeting slang. Aussie means Australian people. My teacher, friends, and even bus driver use this slang so much! And I also use this when I greet people. I am so Aussie right now. It has been over 6 months since I came here. I have gotten used to living here. In Japan, I think summer is coming soon. However, in here, autumn has already finished and winter is coming now. It is not as cold as the Japanese one. The temperature is around 10 degrees in the day and 5 degrees at the night.

In my school, there is some sports team which is called sports academy. This is a specific subject for sports player instead of normal P.E. Sports academy is more professional one. So, in each sport team has a different teacher. I usually play and practice basketball at the time. In term 2 (like Japanese 二学期), all hooper in my grade have to train for their purpose in the gym. The equipment in my school is so good, but this training is pretty hard for me. Since I came here, I do not play any sports so much because there is no sports club such as Japanese one. Therefore, I must have studied about English in the early days. I do not exercise. In this training, all hooper must focus on one part. For example, I focused on my legs to jump higher and touch the basketball ring. Thus, I researched a lot of legs training and I did that. I could not ditch it because everyone took this lesson seriously.

In holidays, I went to some beaches, city, and hangout with my friends. It was fun enough. I went to Japanese restaurant and ate Udon in there. I was deeply moved just by drinking its soup. Some of my friends watched World-cup during these days. And they had curious about Japanese team. I was so happy with that. They always reported to me about Japanese team scored and won. I was not interested in soccer before coming here. However, I usually participate soccer in recess time, which is like 30-minute break between lesson 2 and 3. So, I am excited to watch World-cup with my friends now!
